THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser.

The Eleventh Hour.

Faint, and worn, and aged,
One stands knocking at a gate;
Though no light shines in the casement,
Knocking though so late.
It has struck eleven
In the courts of heaven,
Yet he still doth knock and wait.
While no answer cometh
From the heavenly hill, Blissed angels wonder At his earnest will.
Hope and fear but quicken
While the shadows thicken;
He is knocking, knocking still.
Grim the gate unopened Stands with bar and lock;
Yet within the unseen Porter
Heavens to the knock.
Loose and under in harness,
Paints, oils, and general
Faint and yet pursuing,
This man's feet are on the Rock.
With a cry ascending, Knocking, pray he be;
"Lord, have mercy on me When I cry to Thee."
With a knock unceasing,
And a cry increasing,
"Oh, my Lord, remember me."
Still the Porter standeth, Love-contrained he standeth near,
While the cry increases
Of that love and fear:
"Jesus, look upon me—
Christ has thou forgone me?
If I must, I perish here."
Faint the knocking ceases, Faint the cry and knock;
Is he lost indeed forever,
Shut without the door?
Mighty Arm surround him,
Arms that sought and found him,
Heid, withheld, and bore through all.
O celestial mission,
Open wide the door!
Crown and robes of whiteness,
Store laid before,
Flashing angels bear them,
Stretch thy hands and wear them;
Sit thou down for evermore.
—Christina G. Rorette.

VARIETY.

He has lived well, who has been wisely hidden.
We come by the road of By-and-by to the house of Never.
Unless a tree has borne blossoms in spring, you will vainly look for fruit on it in autumn.
The two largest women in America—Missouri and Mrs. Zippi.
The boy who was caught looking into the future has been arrested for trying to see the show without paying.
When a young lady seems handkerchiefs for a rich bachelor, she probably sees his way may reap.
An editor of a paper in this State wants to know if western whiskey was ever seen "comin' thro' the eye."
Why is a spendthrift's purse like a thunder cloud? Because it is continually lightning.
Provisions from the Pacific. Two gallons of whiskey, two pounds of tobacco, and a loaf of bread.
A printer on seeing a ballad pursuing an unfortunate author, remarked that it was a new edition of the "Pursuit of Literature," unbound and hot-pressed.
An Ohio editor complains that he has got his hand "badly burnt." We suppose that his editorials may hereafter be considered as coming from a raw hand.
Natural history studied from a military point of view develops the fact that the world is indebted to Friar Bacon for gunpowder and pig iron for cannon balls.
A person fond of the marvelous told an improbable story, adding, as was his wont, "Did you ever hear of that before?" "No, sir," said the other; "pray, did you?"
When Family Fier heard that T. E. Chickering was to be Colonel of the Massachusetts 41st, it proposed to name the regiment "Chickering's Panoforte First."
"Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad," and the example is a good one for our imitation. If you would demolish an opponent in argument, first make him as mad as you can.
Major Gen. Mitchell was the inventor of the astronomical clock, now in use in all the observatories of the world—an invaluable mechanism for securing accuracy in the record of observations.
A mother called to her precocious son, "What are you doing there, putting dirt on your sister's head?"
"I am making a little garden for her under her hat, just like yours, mamma," replied the young observer
of the prevailing mode.
The Southern Courier says that one man walked 40 miles to claim exemption from draft, on the ground of inability to endure long marches and the hardships of camp life.
One of the most important, but one of the most difficult things for a general mind, is to be its own master. Minerva should always be at hand to restrain Achilles from blindly following his impulses and appetites, even those which are moral and intellectual, as well as those which are animal and sensual. A pond may lie quiet in a plain; but a lake waits mountains to compass and hold it in.
"Oh Woe!"—I do not hesitate to say that the women give to every nation a moral temperament which shows itself in its politics. A hundred times have I seen weak men show real public virtue because they had by their sides women who supported them, not by advice as to particulars, but by fortifying their feelings of duty, and directing their ambition. More frequently, I must confess, I have observed the domestic influence gradually transforming a man, naturally generous, noble and unselfish, into a cowardly, common-place, place-hunting, selfseeker, thinking of public business only as a means of making himself comfortable, and this simply by contact with a well-conducted woman, a faithful wife, an excellent mother, but from whose mind the grand notion of public duty was entirely absent—De Tocqueville.
HINT TO ADVERTISERS.—THE TIME TO ADVERTISE—Although business is depressed, there never was a better time to advertise, because an advertisement now reaches the eyes of two readers where it reached one before the war. In times of depression and distress, advertising is really more important than in seasons of prosperity. A judicious system of advertising makes business, and this is just what is wanted now. The dealer who discontinues his advertising because of hard times, and in order to reduce expenses, saves at the apogee while he loses at the bough. He cuts off the power upon which he must rely to retain the business he has, and secure more if possible. To obtain trade you must let the people know where you are, and what you are doing; you must present inducements to purchasers and give the largest publicity to your business.
